

ABSTRACT

A simplified method of matching a golfer to a golf club and a golf ball by measuring the golfer's clubhead speed and comparing that measured value to recorded sets of data which correlates a few key variables that can accurately match the golfer with the most 5 suitable golf club and golf ball designed to achieve optimum driving performance.